

Editor's note: After the holidays, and visits from adult children who see changes in their parents, many seniors are looking for alternative living arrange ments. Some seniors require very little assistance while some need special care. Lara Williams is an expert in the field of senior living communities.

Lara Williams

Exactly how independent must I be to live in an independent living residence? Will I have to cook my own meals? Clean my own apartment or house?

While each residence will have its own admission criteria, independent living is the perfect answer for people who are not ready for assisted living but may need just a little help. The type and number of meals and the housekeeping schedule would vary with each residence. At Riverside at Belfair our Independent and Independent Plus programs offer three chef-prepared meals daily, snacks, weekly housekeeping and linen services all included in a monthly financial program that best suits your lifestyle.

What kind of activities can I expect to be available in an independent living community?

Activities at any independent living residence should enlighten, enrich and engage the residents who live there. Having a full-time, dedicated activities director who can schedule and coordinate meaningful programs is necessary to ensure residents get the full benefits of retirement living at an independent living residence. Scheduled activities that interest you and the residence's flexibility to add new programs that residents select are most important. It is not uncommon in an independent living community to be able to select from a variety of volunteer opportunities and social clubs in addition to group outings such as the theater, movies and shopping trips. Riverside at Belfair also offers a fitness center, massage therapists, shuttle service, and 24-hour concierge service.

What can I do for my spouse who needs memory care? Can we still live together?

This would be dependent on the services that a specific residence offers. For instance, the Riverside at Belfair campus is a dedicated "Senior Village" that was designed specifically to provide a continuum of care with Independent, Independent Plus and Assisted Living Memory Care, making it easy for residents to remain connected to their spouse, friends and the Riverside family. Our residents move into our community with complete confidence that they will be provided with excellent care and services now and in the future.

Where do I start when looking for a new place to live?

Determine the type of services you are looking for. Call and speak to several communities about your desires then schedule tours with the ones who you feel would best meet your needs. Try to attend an activity to get a good feel for the community. Make sure you write a list of your questions to ask during the tour. Be sure the residence offers services that will meet your needs for today and in the future.

Lara Williams is executive director of the Riverside at Belfair and Belfair Gardens senior community in Bluffton. lara@riversideatbelfair.com

COMING NEXT ISSUE:

Live longer, live better
Golf and Tennis • Active adults
Nutrition

Advisory Board

G. Neil Love, M.D., is the medical staff director of Hilton Head Regional Health Care in Hilton Head. He received his medical degree from the University of North Carolina, School of Medicine, Chapel Hill, after graduating from Duke University. He is board certified by the American Board of Obstetrics & Gynecology.

Angela Quinn, M.P.T., received a bachelor's degree in biology from Duquesne University and her masters in physical therapy from University of Pittsburgh. Quinn has specialty skills in the area of women's health as she trained at the Magee Women's Hospital in Pittsburgh. Quinn is currently the lead physical therapist at Life Care Center of Hilton Head.

Stephanie Reese, Ph.D., is the Director of Training and Pilot Facility Manager of BrainAdvantage, LLC. She has a BS in Curriculum Development and Computer Animation and a PhD in Cognitive Science and technology. She is an educator, author and former radiologic and medical technician. Cofounder of BrainAdvantage, Scottsdale, AZ and Hilton Head Island, SC.

Kevin M. Sevier, received his B.S. degree in business administration from The Citadel in Charleston, SC. He is the owner of the Kevin Sevier State Farm Agency in Bluffton/Okatie, SC. Kevin has worked to provide insurance and financial service products to meet his client's needs for 12 years. He specializes in auto, home, life and health insurance and is a registered representative for mutual funds with State Farm®.

J. Calvin Sharp Jr., M.D., is an associate partner with Savannah Cardiology, serving Bluffton, Sun City and Hilton Head Island. He is a board certified cardiologist specializing in general and interventional cardiology.

James W. Wilson Jr., M.D., is a board certified orthopedic surgeon with the Southeastern Orthopedic Center of Savannah, GA. He completed his undergraduate studies and medical school at the UNC/Chapel Hill. After receiving his orthopedic training at UTSW in Dallas, his fellowship in sports medicine was with Steadman Hawkins Clinic in Vail, CO.